The risks to participants in this study may include exposure to hot-button topics of conversation comparable in nature to using popular social media platforms such as X, Instagram, Bluesky, Reddit, and others. If you agree to participate, and if you are taking a class taught by a participating professor in the Fall of 2025, you will receive extra-credit points in that class as specified by your professor. Please read the remainder of this form before deciding if you want to volunteer to be in this research study.

My name is [Bethanie Hackett / Garrett McKenzie / Laura Rider], I am an undergraduate student at the University of Mary Washington, and I am seeking your consent to participate in this research study. Involvement in the study is voluntary, so you may choose to participate or not. The information below explains the study in detail. Before volunteering, please ask any questions that you may have about the research; I will be happy to explain anything in greater detail.

I am interested in learning more about software design related to social media. If you agree to participate, you will be asked to complete an interactive activity and two surveys. The interactive activity will involve using a site we built for this study where you and others will contribute to discussions on a custom social-media platform. You will be able to choose which prompt to discuss before starting. Should you determine that your participation is detrimental to your well-being, you may opt out at any time. If you should experience any difficulties during the study, please tell me immediately so that I may take appropriate action. The benefit of this research is that it may contribute to better general understanding of software design related to social media. There are no direct benefits from the outcome of our research to you as a participant, beyond contributing to scientific exploration.
